

Become a facilitator or tutor, to share your passion for sustainable living...

Future
Living
Skills

You enjoy doing what you can to live a greener and more sustainable lifestyle –

How good would it feel, to help others do the same?

By becoming a Sustainable Living Education Facilitator, you will get to:

- Share your passion for and experience in sustainable living in small group settings
- Learn and practice valuable group facilitation and adult teaching skills in a safe setting
- Meet lots of like-minded people who are keen to learn from your experience, and
- Play an active part in building strong, resilient and sustainable communities in New Zealand

... all without

- the need for previous teacher training or public speaking experience
- having to design your classes or curriculum content,
- come up with engaging activities (as they are ready-made), or
- spend hours figuring out how to best communicate or present the information because we've done it for you in our learning guides!

All you need is internet-use confidence, your passion for living 'greener', and to find enjoyment in helping others do the same.

Take a look at www.sustainableliving.org.nz and register, free.

If you'd like to speak with us about how you can organize and set up local education courses, using our ready-made, tried and tested community education resources, access our free 'train the trainers' facilitation within member Council areas – and (depending on location) potentially earn some extra income as a community tutor – contact Rhys Taylor by email at rhys@sustainableliving.org.nz. Put "facilitator" in the subject line and let us know your convenient contact details (including which District of NZ is home) and we will be in touch.

